Gone, But Not Forgotten

Let us honor those who paid the ultimate sacrifice - their own life and death - to preserve our freedoms, in the service of God, family, and country.

Let us receive this gift - our freedoms - with most grateful hearts, and return our deepest thanks, by taking time to make a Memorial Day observance.

These men and women make us all proud. But are they really gone? They are more alive than ever! Until we meet them again, let us always keep their memory alive.

- As you know Monday is Memorial Day, and it's interesting to look at what American's actually think of Memorial Day.
- But as we think about remembering and healing on Memorial Day, it occurred to me that we need to remember more than just who lost their lives. We also need to remember those left behind.
- God does not forget victims. God is their help.
  - #1. God values those who in other places might seem valueless.
  - #2. Often victims also feel misunderstood.
  - #3. While others might forget, while others might misunderstand...God does understand.
- Are you and I willing to sit down with others and hear their story?
